Letter from the Conference Convenor ...

I invite you to Mazatlan for the 28th annual conference of IAMSlic, our first conference in Latin America.

Before the conference starts, there's another first with a training course being held by IOC (International Oceanographic Commission) as part of setting up a new marine information network for Latin America, called ODINCARSA. The people from the course will be staying on for the Conference so you will be there at the beginning of a new network and hear of other developments in the region. As delegates they will be new to IAMSlic and they will be joined by members from Latin America who are not part of the ODINCARSA course.

There will be other sponsored delegates from Africa, the Pacific and the West Indies and if you take a look at the Program, I think that you will agree, we have achieved a very wide geographic representation this year. Many of these delegates are presenting posters or papers.

One of our keynote speakers, Dr. Meryl Williams, is Director of the World Fish Center, the new name for ICLARM, now based in Malaysia. It is one of the largest international agencies assisting poor people in developing countries through scientific research to improve the production, management and conservation of living aquatic resources. Employing more than 240 in staff worldwide, it supports research facilities and offices in nine countries and has ongoing projects in 22 countries. Underpinning this is an information service which has to cope with the barriers of the digital divide in supporting its staff and the people it seeks to help.

Professor Jorge Schement, our other keynote speaker, is Professor and Co-Director of the Institute for Information Policy in the College of Communications, and in the School of Information Science and Technology at Penn State University. A Latino from South Texas, he maintains a special interest in policy as it relates to ethnic minorities. In 1999 Jorge participated in the Roundtable discussion led by the US Secretary of State at the Digital Divide Summit. Given the main theme of our Conference we are fortunate to have such a leading authority on the subject.

Following our keynote speakers many of our longstanding members will be giving papers on new projects at their own institutions or on general developments in information services. Peter Brueggeman will tell us about digitizing library and archive materials at Scripps and later in the program he will present a fascinating slide talk on the traditional trap fishery for bluefin tuna in Sardinia. Pauline Simpson's paper is on the Open Archive Initiative, Jan Heckman on 24 hour reference service, Cathy Norton on a taxonomic name server and Natalie Wiest on measuring library service quality.

Be part of developments in a region that IAMS LIC hasn't been in before, renew contact with colleagues and participate in a stimulating program. Make your conference bookings and try and find time to see something of the Pacific coast of Mexico while you are in Mazatlan.

A Note from the Editors ...

This abbreviated edition of the IAMS LIC Newsletter is being sent directly to your desktop to make you aware of the outstanding program that has been developed by Committee to enrich your experience at the conference in Mazatlan.

There are no graphics included in this issue. We wanted it to be as small as possible so that you will have little trouble receiving it. Many of the items are up on the various web pages where you can get details on Mazatlan, travel information, registration, conference fees, and lodging. The conference will be held at the Hotel Playa. Special conference rates have been negotiated for IAMS LIC delegates: There are 2 room rates, $64 Ocean View Room and $74 Garden View Room, with an additional 17% tax. These rates are lower than the rates given on the Hotel's Web page.

Please book your accommodation directly with the Hotel Playa, but say that you are attending the IAMS LIC conference.
